TV PIPELINE

By Jay Bobbin

Q: I'm glad to see Pierce Brosnan back on television in "The Son." Didn't he make a Stephen King story for TV a few years ago? — Carol Black, Buffalo, N.Y.

A: He did. "Bag of Bones" was a 2011 A&E Network miniseries, and it was the first home-screen project Brosnan had done — other than lending his voice to an episode of "The Simpsons" — since becoming the movie world's James Bond.

Pierce Brosnan

While promoting "The Son," he told us he wouldn't rule out a steadier return to TV work, something that he and his late producing partner Beau St. Clair had been investigating prior to "The Son" coming up for him.

Q: Did any of the actors who co-star with Gary Sinise on "Criminal Minds: Beyond Borders" also co-star with him on "CSI: NY"? — Jeff Anderson, Palatine, Ill.

A: No, but one of his "Beyond Borders" colleagues spent time in another part of CBS' "CSI" franchise. Alana De La Garza had a recurring role as Marisol Delko, the sister of detective Eric Delko (Adam Rodriguez, who's now on the parent "Criminal Minds") and eventual wife of team leader Horatio Caine (David Caruso), on "CSI: Miami." The character was ill-fated, but the actress largely has played powerful women since, also encompassing her stints on "Law & Order," "Do No Harm" and "Forever."

Q: Who will replace Robert Osborne on Turner Classic Movies? — Sam Pritchard, via e-mail

A: If we may say, he is irreplaceable, since few people are able to combine a vast knowledge of cinema history with such a genial and widely beloved on-camera persona. However, with Ben Mankiewicz now handling the lion's share of the channel's movie introductions, it's probable there will come a time when TCM enlists another regular host.

It's all but certain that the executives there want to wait an appropriate amount of time at Turner to show proper respect to the late Osborne and the role he had from the moment the channel launched. In the meantime, you'll probably continue to see guest hosts on the order of Dana Delany, Ron Perlman and Michael Feinstein, who were among those who filled in during Osborne's medical leave.

The most difficult gauntlet in sports? The Triple Crown, says NBC's Collmus

By George Dickie

Each sport's championship round has its own challenges, be it baseball's lengthy grind, hockey's intensity or football's sheer physical punishment. But for degree of difficulty, one could make the case that thoroughbred racing's Triple Crown is the top of the list.

Consider: Each of the three races poses separate and distinct tests. In the Kentucky Derby, it's a crowded field of 20 horses; in the Preakness Stakes, it's a short two-week rest; and in the Belmont Stakes, it's the 1 1/2-mile distance. And if that's not enough, the latter two races include fresher, better-rested horses, all pointed toward knocking off the Triple Crown hopeful.

Little wonder, then, why there have been only 12 winners of all three races since 1875, the most recent being American Pharoah two years ago, who became the first since Affirmed in 1978 to successfully run the gauntlet.

"When it takes 37 years between wins, it's kind of difficult to do ...," says Larry Collmus, who will call the 143rd running of the Kentucky Derby when NBC airs it live from Churchill Downs in Louisville on Saturday, May 6. "But what makes the Triple Crown so great is that it hasn't changed. And where the rest of the sport has, where horses aren't running as many times as they used to, and they take all this additional time between races where they didn't used to do that, now you run into a situation where it's old school — it's three races in five weeks and you have to be able to win those three races."

It's almost an impossible feat and it takes an outer-worldly horse to do it, and luckily in 2015 we had one."

But unlike two years ago, when Pharoah had generated major buzz throughout the sport and was generally considered to be the best horse coming into the Triple Crown, no such clear favorite had emerged this year as of mid-April. But there is one name you may be hearing quite a bit of come Saturday: Todd Pletcher.

At this writing, the 49-year-old trainer from Dallas had five horses in the top 20 of the Kentucky Derby points standings with a sixth not far back. Of course, by the time the first Saturday in May rolls around, all, some or none may have dropped out because of injury or performance issues, or someone deciding that the horse simply wasn't right for the race. But it's no secret Pletcher would like to collect his second Derby win this week.

"I've seen him in action," Collmus says, "where he'll have 200 horses under his care and he could tell you where each and every horse is going to be making their next start, just off the top of his head. So the guy's brain is on a different level and it's fun to watch."

"Todd is just as good as it gets," he continues, "and it seems like this year he's going to be strong, with a ton of horses. Of course, he's only won the Derby once. He won it with Super Saver (in 2010), and there are naysayers that say, 'Hey, that's the one race that Todd has trouble with.' But who knows? He might win his second one this year."

The 143rd Kentucky Derby airs Saturday on NBC.

Where we live is where we make our memories. It's where our youngsters roll around on the floor with laughter, it's where our pets rest their heads, it's where we meet with friends and family during holidays. With all these precious events in mind, it'd be a shame to think the floors that hold these memories might not be sanitary. No worries! Angel Carpet Cleaning can help with that.

While Angel Carpet Cleaning certainly does an expert job at cleaning carpets, they do so much more. Bathrooms can look brand new with tile and grout replacement, sealant, and restoration. Hardwood floors can shine brightly with the proper waxing. Time and wear will be no more with a fresh and professional painting. They also provide a kitchen and bath resurfacing service. For the workers out there, your office can be cleaned good as new, as can your home. Keep your home looking like new with these amazing services from this professional and worthy business.

While the weather is slowly breaking into sunny barbeque weather, you might also be interested in their power washing for yards. Of course, this can be done to your home also, if that better suits your needs.

Angel Carpet Cleaning is a fully insured and bonded company that takes care of residential homes, as well as commercial spaces. You will be thrilled with the results and friendly service. In addition, Maria and Abraham owners and operators of this company are Bayonne residents and honor most credit cards.

For a free estimate, call 201-892-6400. Whether it's the home, office, or yard, it's always easier to enjoy when it's looking its best. This is especially true for those who are looking to get their home ready for rent or sale! Keep your space as sparkling as the beautiful memories you make in them with Angel Carpet Cleaning.

Tracy Spiridakos signs up for 'Chicago P.D.' duty

By Jay Bobbin

"Chicago P.D." is getting a new detective, and if you've watched television in recent years, she'll probably look familiar.

After starring in the series "Revolution," Tracy Spiridakos checked into "Bates Motel" for a brief but memorable stay, and she's turned up several times this season as the title hero's ex-flame turned enemy turned apparent ally on CBS' "MacGyver" reboot. She's definitely on the side of the good guys — albeit in a somewhat tainted way at first — as she begins a recurring role on NBC's "Chicago P.D." Wednesday, May 3.

Tracy Spiridakos stars in "Chicago P.D." Wednesday on NBC.

Spiridakos' new character, Hailey Upton, is a recently minted detective who got her shield via an undercover mission that remains a mystery to many. Others have doubts about her earning the promotion, and they initially include the equally determined Sgt. Hank Voight (Jason Beghe) when they collide over a case. Suffice it to say that by the end of her first episode, he's offering her a spot alongside the others in his unit if she wants it. "I think she earns their respect quickly, just by her nature," the spirited Spiridakos says. "She's really smart, she's in tune with her instincts, and she's good at her job. She's full of p and vinegar — I don't know if I can say that, but I just did! — and initially, there is that clash with Voight, but they end up being asked to work together to solve this case. And he comes to respect her abilities.

"She doesn't care what anybody thinks of her, and that's one of my favorite things about her," adds Spiridakos. "As much as she has to prove herself, if you don't like her, that's fine. She's OK with that. She's going to go in and do what she needs to get done, and that makes for an interesting moment with Voight. When they're battling for control of the case, she isn't looking for him to like or respect her. She's just very confident that she's the person to solve it."

Spiridakos is poised to continue into the all-but-certain Season 5 of "Chicago P.D.," and what she describes as her "guest star" status could leave her available to return to "MacGyver," which already has its Season 2 order from CBS.

"I like playing strong women who are forces of nature and believe in themselves," the Winnipeg-born actress confirms. "That's important to put out there, and I'm very honored to play characters who are like that."

WOLFGANG PUCK'S KITCHEN
 ITALY'S MOST POPULAR DESSERT
 It's easy to understand why tiramisu is Italy's most popular dessert. When you've got one dish that combines the flavors of chocolate and espresso coffee with sugar, light spongy ladyfinger cookies, and tangy-creamy mascarpone cheese, how can you possibly go wrong? No wonder it gets its name, which is Italian slang for "pick-me-up."

In fact, this dish is one of the few cases in which I don't try to improve on tradition - even though tiramisu's tradition isn't all that great, considering the dessert origins seem to trace back no more than a century, and its popularity arose on this side of the Atlantic only in the last few decades. Nevertheless, however old it might be, you just don't mess with a classic in which all the ingredients work together in perfect harmony.

TIRAMISU
 Serves 8 to 12
LADYFINGER CAKE:
 Melted butter, for brushing pan
 6 eggs, separated
 1/2 cup sugar
 1 cup cake flour, sifted
MASCARPONE CREAM:
 6 egg yolks
 1 cup sugar
 1/4 cup Marsala
 1/4 cup brandy
 2 pounds mascarpone cheese, at room temperature
ESPRESSO SYRUP:
 1 cup hot freshly brewed espresso
 3 tablespoons brown sugar
 1 tablespoon granulated sugar
 1 teaspoon lemon juice
 1 teaspoon vanilla extract
 1/2 cup grated bittersweet chocolate
 First, make the Ladyfinger Cake: Preheat the oven to 350 degrees. Butter a 12-by-16-inch rimmed baking sheet, line with parchment paper, and brush the paper with butter. In a mixing bowl, use a handheld electric mixer on medium speed to beat the yolks with half of the sugar until the mixture is light in color and forms a ribbon when the beaters are lifted. Set aside. In another bowl, using clean beaters, whip the egg whites to soft peaks. Beating continuously, slowly pour in the remaining sugar and continue beating until the whites form slightly drooping peaks when the beaters are lifted. Sift the flour again. With a rubber spatula, fold half of the flour into the yolk mixture. Fold in half of the whites. Then, fold in the remaining flour. Finally, fold in the remaining whites. Pour into the prepared baking sheet and, with a spatula, carefully spread to fill the tray. Bake until golden, 12 to 15 minutes. Remove from the oven and let cool to room temperature. (This can be done up to 2 weeks ahead; if so, remove the cake from the baking sheet, wrap airtight in plastic wrap and foil, and store in the freezer.)

Next, make the Mascarpone Cream: In a medium heatproof bowl, whisk together the yolks and sugar. Add the Marsala and brandy. Place over a pan of boiling water, taking care that the bottom of the bowl doesn't touch the water, and cook, stirring, until the mixture reaches 160 degrees on a cooking thermometer. Continue cooking and stirring until the mixture resembles a thick paste, about 5 minutes. Remove and place the bowl inside a larger bowl of ice water. Stir occasionally until the mixture cools to room temperature. Put the mascarpone in another bowl and, with an electric mixer on medium speed, beat until it forms soft peaks. With a rubber spatula, fold thoroughly into the yolk mixture. (This can be made up to four hours ahead, covered and refrigerated.)

Next, make the Espresso Syrup: In a heatproof bowl, stir together the espresso, brown and granulated sugars, lemon juice and vanilla, until the sugars dissolve completely. Set aside. To assemble: Cut the sheet of cake into two 8-by-10-inch portions. Divide the Mascarpone Cream into 3 equal portions and the Espresso Syrup into 2. Spread a portion of the Mascarpone Cream over the bottom of a deep 8-by-10-inch dessert dish. Top with 1 sheet of cake. Drizzle 1 portion of syrup evenly over the cake. When it has soaked in, repeat with another layer of Mascarpone Cream, another cake sheet, and more syrup. Top with the remaining Mascarpone Cream and sprinkle with grated chocolate. Cover and refrigerate for at least 2 hours. To serve, cut into square or rectangular portions.
